ALL ABOUT WAR

If you plan a war, or any energetic thing that might cause criticism, it is well to build up a "cause" and have your quarrel just.

Japan intends to take Manchuria, needing room, a great deal of it, for a Japanese overflow, of many millions. Manchuria would suit, since Japan cannot colonize the North American Pacific coast.

To take Manchuria and send in Japanese as rulers immediately, might seem a little "raw," in the language of the United States. Orientals object to anything of that kind.

The plan is to take the young deposed boy emperor, Henry Pu-Yi, and send him as a pseudo emperor of Manchuria, actual representative and dummy for Japan.

The Chinese Manchuria dynasty, to whose power Pu-Yi is natural heir, came from Manchuria, owned the place. What more natural than to make the boy emperor Manchurian emperor once more, Japan ruling and owning, under the convenient shadow of his name, as the old Japanese Shogunate once ruled in the name of the Mikado.

TOKYO REPORTS that Japan is "losing hope of averting a clash," which is like a fox in the pink of condition saying "I am afraid I shall have to bite that fat goose after all."

That England sides with Japan in the controversy, apparently on general principles, is also interesting. Japan and Britain had a close alliance for defense, until the Washington conference, which made it worth while for Britain to end that alliance.

Britain is said to have notified the league that it is not interested in any boycott of Japan, diplomatic or otherwise.

Recent developments, however, touching the intense pride of Japan, may cause that country to take a short cut through present troubles. Dispatches from Tientsin tell of Siberian "Reds" and Chinese troops under General Mah inflicting a severe defeat on the Japanese, capturing their airplanes.

Japanese suspect that General Mah, aggressive Chinese, has had all along an understanding with Russia, which is probable. Bret Harte's "Heavenly Chinese" is now a highly civilized Chinese, but still understands "ways that are dark and tracks that are vain."

If Japan has suffered a defeat, she will demand an immediate victory, on a scale to cause the defeat to be forgotten.

A CONVICT was mysteriously murdered by another. The thrust of a sharpened file appears to have done the work. The warden's decision "to call off the proposed football game to which the convicts were looking forward," as a general punishment, is interesting.

Not so long ago, everybody suspected of the crime or of knowing about it would have been put to the torture, until desired information had been obtained.

Now prisoners are told, "you shall not see the football game."

The world has become milder.

SPECIAL MEETS ARRANGED FOR THANKSGIVING

Ministerial Association Churches to Sponsor
Joint Services

PLAN OBSERVANCE WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Programs Also Will Be Presented In Other
Salem Churches

Special Thanksgiving services will be held by churches affiliated with the Salem Ministerial association on Wednesday night, November 25, Rev. Sidney A. Mayer, president, announced today.

Three separate services will be held by the association's six congregations, Rev. Mayer, pastor of the First Methodist church, stated, replacing the union service held by the organization in other years.

Hold Joint Observance

The First Baptist and Holy Trinity Lutheran churches will join in one service with the First Presbyterian and First Christian combining for a second. The Methodist and First Friends will hold a similar gathering.

The Church of Our Saviour will hold its annual Thanksgiving service at 8:15 a. m. Thursday, November 26, Rev. C. A. Roth, pastor, stated today. The Emmanuel Lutheran congregation will be called on for annual observance of the day on Sunday, November 29, according to its pastor, Rev. B. E. Rutzky.

Other Salem churches will also hold special observances during the week.

Offerings at the three services held by the Ministerial association members will be contributed to the Red Cross. Special prayers will be offered towards the relief of distress among the city's poor and needy while thanks will be given for the banner crops yielded throughout the nation during the past summer.

Arrange Programs

Pastors of the six churches are now arranging complete programs for the services. Special musical numbers will be given.

The pastors joining for the event are Rev. Mayer, Rev. C. A. Westphal, First Baptist; Rev. G. D. Kelster, Holy Trinity Lutheran; Rev. R. D. Walter, First Presbyterian; Rev. C. F. Evans, First Christian; Rev. C. F. Bailey, First Friends.

Trustees Losers In Court Action

LISBON, Nov. 14.—Although Franklin township trustees obtained a verdict for $217 against C. O. Hawk in court here, the trustees lost the case in the end, as it has been determined also by the jury that the trustees shall return the road grader they purchased from Hawk to him.

The grader was purchased from the C. O. Hawk Co., here by a former board of township trustees, and when a new board assumed office, an effort was made by some of the trustees to have Hawk return the money. Trustees summoned state examiners to their aid. Suit against Hawk followed, with counsel from the office of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman and Prosecuting Attorney John E. Bauknecht representing the trustees.

Attorney Charles C. Connell represented Hawk, who did not place Hawk on the stand. Should the trustees return the road grader to Hawk, the board will then have to count as lost the money it paid for the machine.

It is probable, however, that counsel for the trustees will suggest to the grader, pay the costs in the case and charge their day in court to expense.

Senior Class Fete Committees Named

A third group, composed of LaVerda Capel, chairman, Ray Reich, John Paul Ollman, Anne Binsley and Mary Campbell, will be in charge of refreshments.

Jury Will Act On Metzger Will Case

LISBON, Nov. 14.—Instead of the court determining whether or not the will and testament of Sara A. Metzger of Salem is the last will and testament, the issue is to be determined by a jury.

This has been determined by Judge W. F. Lones in the case of Ada H. Greiner against W. B. Moore and others, executors under the will. The court has said: The issue whether the writing mentioned in the petition is the last will and testament of Sara A. Metzger, deceased, shall be ascertained by the verdict of a jury.

The truck was in charge of Forest Greenshield and William Doubleday of Akron.

As he stepped from the driver's cabin, he saw the flames bursting from the rear of the truck. He and his aid seized the fire extinguishers and attempted to extinguish the blaze but were forced to give up.

A short time later, the gasoline tank exploded.

Automobile owners having purchased new cars must have transfers taken out before licenses can be obtained, Morris said.

Serial numbers of plates issued at the Salem office will be from 751-251 to 754-950.

DAWES GOES TO PARIS

The remote and troubled Manchurian situation is shoved into the foreground of American interest by the threat of war and economic disturbance it presents. The United States, a vigorous orator for peace, would be false to its national convictions if it did not use its present opportunities to act for peace.It is sending perhaps the most able of its "dollar diplomats" to Paris to act as consultant in the important meeting of the council of the League of Nations Monday.
At the conclusion of its meeting in October, the council adopted a resolution calling upon Japan to begin immediately withdrawal of its troops to the railroad zone in Manchuria and to complete the movement by Nov. 16. The recommendation has not been carried out.
Present disposition of Japanese forces in Manchuria makes compliance a physical impossibility; a virtual state of war exists in Manchuria. The council of the League of Nations, as a result, is in an exceedingly delicate position.It cannot back down without seeming to admit that the fine promises its members have been making since the close of the World war were empty gestures. On the other hand it can go forward only cautiously, lest it place too great a strain on its power and come to grief. The League of Nations will be the most important phrase in international news during the coming week.General Dawes' presence at its council meetings is assurance that the United States is in deadly earnest about bringing pressure to bear on Japan and China to settle the Manchurian dispute by arbitration instead of war. This nation is not in the League of Nations, but it is on record impressively for peaceful settlement of international conflicts. The league cannot act effectively without American cooperation. In the present instance, it is a diplomatic partnership of great strength. This country is Japan's best foreign customer, taking more than 40 per cent of all Japanese exports. Japan cannot afford to ignore that important fact during the coming negotiations.

MORE SPECULATION

Washington hasn't decided yet what Vice President Curtis is going to run for, and since he seems to be waiting for the speculators to make up their minds before he commits himself, it may be a long time before anything happens. In the meantime there is something else to guess about.Will President Hoover appeal for nonpartisan support of his legislative program and a moratorium of politics in his message to congress?President Hoover, about this time last year, was obliged to welcome cordially a promise of cooperation from the Democratic "Big Seven." It was a noble gesture that promised much, but profited little. The Democrats had everything to gain and nothing to lose; they gained nothing. The Republicans had everything to lose and nothing to gain. They lost nothing.This year everything is changed.
Democrats seem certain to organize the house. Republicans outnumber them only by one member in the senate. There is nothing in the world to make them desire a moratorium of politics. They have worked hard for the advantageous position they now occupy, partly as a result of their hard work and partly as a result of good luck. Why should they give it up, with a presidential election in the offing?These are the reasons why President Hoover will not ask for non-partisan support of his program or a moratorium of politics during the coming session of congress. He has been accused of not understanding politics, but no one has accused him yet of not understanding human nature.

What Others Say

THE PRESIDENT'S BUDGET

President Hoover has announced that he will submit to congress a budget which will show "a reduction of at least $350,000,000" from the amount originally requested by the various departments. This substantial saving, equivalent to approximately ten per cent of the total expenditures of the government last year, is the result of months of effort. Every department has co-operated, the President reports, and "every item has been cut." In publishing his estimate a month before congress meets, he has given ample notice of the economies that may be effected. He urges sectional interests to refrain from urging increased expenditures at the present time. "Nothing will contribute more to the return of prosperity than to maintain the sound financial position of the government."It must be remembered that the economies which the President has worked out would be made effective in the fiscal year which begins next July and ends in June 1933. Nothing in his plans can affect expenditures during the present year. Approach has been made, and even withdrawals for this year have already been made. It is not until such deficiency measures as may be enacted later will amount to $4,119,000,000. Meantime, during the first four months of this fiscal year, the income of the government from taxation and from other sources has been $715,000,000. At this rate, its receipts for the full year will be $2,145,000,000 leaving a deficit of $1,947,000,000—by far the largest ever recorded in a year of peace, and to be added to the deficit of $903,000,000 for the fiscal year which closed last June.All this makes it clear that the financial problem confronting the government will not be solved even if congress can be persuaded to limit itself to the budget which the President will submit. It is important to scale down expenditures during the year 1932-33, but it is also important to reduce substantially the enormous deficit now indicated for the immediate future. The President is doubtless considering various plans for adding to the government's revenue through new forms of taxation. Unpleasant as the task may be, he has no alternative if he wishes to preserve the treasury's credit, to protect the holders of federal bonds and to safeguard "the sound financial position of the government."—New York Times.

U. S. on Guard in China

The cavalry detachment of the 15th U. S. Infantry, stationed at Tientsin, China, is shown in formation before the gates of the foreign concession, where it is on guard to prevent disturbances growing out of the attempted assassination of Henry Pu-Yi (inset), China's deposed "boy emperor," from endangering foreign lives.
An ultimatum was delivered to the Chinese provincial government, following the attempt on Pu-Yi's life, that anyone venturing within 300 feet of the wall of the foreign concession would be shot.

EYESTRAIN AND HEALTH

A common experience of those who are specializing in eye examinations is to be told, "My eyesight is perfect. Certainly I don't need glasses because I can see everything."The fact is, this is the person who may be in greater need of lenses than one who has very defective sight. Naturally, you will ask,
"How can this be?"If one has such defective vision that he just cannot see, of course he won't try, and therefore there is no strain. But if one has a quality of vision which makes it possible by an effort, even though that effort is unconsciously made, of course, he will go on using his eyes, flattering himself that these organs are normal because he can see even the finest type or the tiniest stitches.The constant expenditure of such effort is damaging to the nervous system. It results in constant drainage of nerve energy. It tires the delicate muscles of the eyes. It causes too much blood to flow into the parts. It lays the foundation for serious disease of the eyes.Without enlarging upon this phase of the question, let me leave with you the thought that you are incompetent to judge whether or not your eyes are normal. It is only by a careful test by one who has scientific training that the true condition of your eyes can be determined.

Causes "Nervous Indigestion"

This is the reason why many persons have headaches and backaches and the symptoms of what is called "nervous indigestion." Nature resents such improper demands upon her. It stands to reason that if you use up your nervous energy in order to see perfectly, you have not left enough nervous energy to carry on the other functions of the body.If time permitted, I could say a lot more about the relationship of eyestrain to general ill health. I hope I have said enough to make it clear to you that you can ill afford to neglect periodical examinations of the eyes. We are constantly preaching the importance of periodical general examinations. No such examination is complete unless the eyes have been tested.

Sunday's horoscope holds forethere may be surprising develop-

For Monday, November 16

Monday's astrological forecast is a very interesting one for business,NEW YORK Day by Day
by O.O. McIntyreNEW YORK, Nov. 14.—With a passing glance no one would imagine I've just recently returned from a cruise on a private yacht.
I'm practically the plain old shoe I was before sailing away—tossing my own neckties, mingling with working people along the sidewalk and waving to corner cops.Save for writing "lay-to" for periods in telegrams instead of "stop" few would distinguish me from the ordinary run of land-lubbers. Yet in looking in the mirror there is something in the reflection of the vast deep—the leathery cheek, squinty eye and rolling swaggar.
Blast my timbers!A fellow guest was Meredith Nicholson, whose marine adventures up to now were limited to crossing the Wabash in a row boat. Our host was—well, it doesn't matter.
He won't be asking us again. Anyway, next year they'll be giving yachts free with six banjo lessons by mail, I hear. And we'll all ride.Upon receiving the telephonic invitation for the cruise I explained that Mr. Nicholson had suddenly arrived in town and I would like to bring him. It was highly agreeable so I called up one of the large and never hotels, asked to be connected with their guest and got the novelist."But I have no yachting clothes," he said. "No one yachts in Indiana." I haven't yachting duds either but he didn't have to know. So I comforted him with: "Just wear a plain old business suit and so you won't feel conspicuous I'll do the same thing."At 6:30 in the evening we met at a boat club landing at 26th street and the East River. Mr. Nicholson sporting a wing collar, mourning black Ascot tie, derby, high button shoes, red silk suspenders and otherwise was a living picture of"What the Well Dressed Indianapo-lian is Wearing." But a figure of immaculate piety withal.As we strolled down the dock length a white ducked sailor inquired our names, saluted and led us to an 8-foot dinghy bobbing alongside. "This is a heck of a yacht," whispered Mr. N. Nicholson and sneered, and only one sailor.
He didn't know it was the motor boat to zip us out to the real thing.From then until we returned five and a half hours later I was censuredly embarrassed by Mr. Nicholson—who from now on will be just Nick. He's lucky I confine it to that, too. No sooner had we mounted steps to the yacht's deck than he inquired for the wireless operator, something the boat didn't have. His idea was to put on the lug and broadcast sundry messages here and there to the corn belt.Sudden thought: Every time I am on a private yacht—twice to be exact—I always think of a swell headline for the home town paper:
"Local Boy Missing Off Millionaire's Yacht."After we stretched out languidly in the wicker chairs, refreshed with frosty beakers of lemonade, the host passed around his guest book for signatures. There was a space for some sentiment and across space for one's name. Nick signed first and when the book came to me I noticed he had written: "On a yot! Wet!" for his sentiment, which may help you understand with what I had to put up.Our path was down the East River, out through the placid harbor and away to ruffled Sandy Hook. It was a beautiful night but there was no moon, which seemed to disturb Nick. Frequently he would pace up and down the deck, lean out over the rail, look skyward and shriek:
"What—no moon?" You would have thought it was the host's fault.Shortly before reaching the Hook, Nick disappeared. But after the vessel made a graceful and sweeping turn for the trip home he suddenly returned. "Well," he beamed, held-ing to the taffrail "how did you like that? It has been a long, long time since I've gripped the bid wheel." And what is more one dear little old lady was so impressed by his braggadocio she complimented him on his masterly seamanship. "One feels so safe with you," she cooed.
But the greatest mortification was after landing and walking to Nick's hotel. Along the avenue, he suddenly dragged me with a hornpipe sashay into one of those fashionable soda counters. Lolling up to the collar ad soda clerk he bellowed: "Mate, stir up a noggin of grog for two old salts." I could have sworn! What with my spats

SYNOPSIS

Lovely Fanchon Meredith is wanted by the San Francisco police in connection with a murder committed by her sweetheart, "Tony." Fanchon did not know he was a gunman. She escapes by airplane under the name of "Smith." Aboard is Evelyn Howard, whom Fanchon had met on a voyage from Hawaii. Evelyn is going to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, whom she never saw. The plane crashes and Fanchon is the only survivor. To get away from Tony and the past, she goes to the Carstairs home as "Evelyn." A strong bond of affection grows between Mrs. Carstairs and her "niece." Collin Carstairs is at first antagonistic because of his "cousin's" Hawaiian escapades and her self-righteous attitude when his mother offered aid, but Fanchon's sincerity overcomes his objections. They fall in love. After a happy summer at Southampton, Fanchon makes her debut in New York. Collin, though realizing their relationship is a barrier, cannot resist professing his love. Fanchon cannot acknowledge hers without revealing her identity. A few days later, a threatening note comes from Tony. She visits him and repulses his advances. Tony informs Fanchon that Evelyn is alive but has lost her memory. He threatens to expose Fanchon unless she introduces him to Mrs. Carstairs as "Cesare Gilli."

CHAPTER XXI

She said scornfully, "Your word against mine? You have no proof. Or if you have, it is the sort of proof which would place you, yourself, in the hands of the police."

"I think," he told her, with a certain deadly courtesy, "that you don't mean that. Or haven't thought ahead. For word of her niece, Mrs. Carstairs might be quite willing to keep my presence in New York from San Francisco headquarters."

Fanchon said, fighting for time, "But Evelyn—out there—in an institution!"

"She isn't out there," he told her gently, "she is here with me. I was permitted to bring her here. She is perfectly harmless. I have a woman to take care of her. A perfectly responsible woman. As her—fiancee."

Necklines Are Important

A novel treatment of the scarf neckline tops a paneled skirt that is quite lovely. At the bottom of each panel seam is an inset pleat that tends to graceful fullness well below the knee. The scarf is pulled through a slash in the bodice and tied into a pert bow. Buttons cleverly simulate side effect. You'll like this model in canton or Rosbarra crepe, sheer dress or satin. Black with white or green, brose with rust, green or gold, dull red with black or pale blue.

She had pearls at her throat and in her ears—all this the young man noticed.

of course, I had every right to look after her. She is well treated. It would not rest easy on my conscience, would it, if she were—less well treated.

"Listen, Fanchon," he went on, as she grew cold and sick all over. "Listen! If you will do as I ask—and what I ask of you is simplicity itself, I will say nothing. You may go on being Evelyn Howard for the rest of time as far as I am concerned. This girl upstairs, with the child's mind shall not suffer. If it becomes expedient for me to change the manner of my living and my household, I will put her in some home where she will be well cared for the rest of her life. No danger from her; for you, of course," he went on "if they should decide to operate."

"What do you mean?" asked Fanchon frantically.

"There is just a chance of her regaining her memory and her wit. A very faint chance. There is something at the base of the brain, an abscess, I understand. In all events, some pressure. It is a dangerous operation, and when I first saw her, her general health was not good, her physical condition. It was out of the question to operate then. Build her health up," they told me. They also told me that the best brain specialist, the best brain surgeon, was in this part of the country. I have not consulted him. Perhaps I never shall."

Fanchon said, slowly: "You must. I must."

"Not so fast. It is one chance in a thousand. She might, she is very likely to, die under the operation. Better play the game my way. Let me send in Cesare Gilli's card to you. I ask nothing more."

"But what is your game?" she demanded, desolately.

"Of that," he smiled, "I am not so sure. But I am sure that unless you comply—Would you care to see Evelyn?" he asked suddenly. "Of course, strangers upset her, and it will be something of a shock to you."

She said desperately: "No... no... not that!" Then, pulling herself together, she joined to her? Jennie, however, had her own heart's solution, for it would not be long now before Collin would be sailing for England, on the first stage of his journey to the Far East. Jennie thought, unhappily, she does care for him; I was, after all, misled.

Two days later, when Jennie Carstairs came home from an afternoon spent in arguing with the other members of a certain charity committee and came home tired, thinking of a quiet talk with her son and her niece, thinking of tea and relaxation, she was met at the door by Jameson with the information that Miss Evelyn had a caller and that Mr. Collin had not yet returned to the apartment.

On her way to her bedroom, Jennie glanced into the drawing room, fancying that perhaps Evelyn was entertaining one of the girls she knew or one of the ubiquitous young men. To her astonishment, she saw her deep in a low voiced conversation with a man who was perfectly strange to Jennie. A dark young man, very Latin in appearance, very graceful, very well dressed, who stood over by the window and held a cigarette loosely in his fingers. Jennie moved away, but Fanchon looked up and saw her.

"Aunt Jennie," she said, and Mrs. Carstairs noticed her painful flush.

The stranger moved away from the window. Jennie Carstairs came into the room. She had a magnificent silver fox fur over one arm. She had pearls at her throat and in her ears. All this the young man noticed. The Carstairs jewels were rather famous. Some of them Jennie rarely wore as they adorned a safe deposit vault instead.

Fanchon rose.

"Aunt Jennie, may I present my old friend, Mr. Cesare Gilli?" she said, quietly, but her heart was laden within her.

ready at Port Everglades on the east coast of Florida.

This port, only 17 miles from Miami, costing $6,000,000, will enable very big ships to touch at Florida for the first time.

That is good news for the whole country. What helps one part helps another.

Next should come a deep canal across Florida, enabling coastwise ships to go from the Atlantic into the gulf of Mexico without traveling around the tip end of Florida through the summer hurricane season, cutting at least 1,000 miles from the New York to New Orleans water trip.

The United States should build that, beginning at Stuart, through the St. Lucie Canal, Lake Okechobee, and on to the gulf.

IN AN EFFORT to reach a common sense agreement concerning copper, now sold for far less than production cost, fails, because Belgians that own mines in Africa would not consent.

African ore is rich and in abundance. African semi-slave labor is plentiful and cheap. Lack of agreement among copper men discourages copper production and this inevitably diminishes the output of river, largely a by-product of copper mining. Because of greatly increased demand for silver from the east, speculators and some bankers that have sold silver they did not own, are again warned that they are in an unpleasant position. Since that warning was first published here, silver metal has increased in value more than 20 per cent, and certain imminent developments might increase it 100 per cent.

Speculators on the short side take warning.

NEWSPAPER READERS discuss one of many "interesting American shootings."

A young man named Donaldson, aged 24, wooed too well a girl whose acquaintance he made at 17. The girl's father says Donaldson admitted his guilt in connection with the girl, whom he did not marry.

The girl's brother killed Donaldson and the father relates that Donaldson, a powerful young athlete, made conditions worse by knocking down the girl's father, also knocking down her other brother and knocking out some of his teeth.

The other side of the story remains to be told in court, but, juries and human nature being what they are, if the girl confirms her father's story, it is not probable that her brother will be sent to join Donaldson, via the electric chair.

Jailing of Lord Kysant Typical British Justice

Machinery of English Law Operates Remorselessly and Rapidly, Blind to Social and Financial Position of Malefactor.

The recent conviction and imprisonment of Lord Kysant, of Carmarthen, one of the most influential peers in England, for fraud in issuing a misleading prospectus of the Royal Mail Shipping Company, focuses public interest upon the rapidity and impartiality with which British machinery of the law operates. Kysant is not the only person in an eminent social position to suffer the penalty for failing outside the law. Back in 1923, Lord Alfred Douglas was sent to jail for six months on being convicted of having libeled Winston Churchill, noted statesman, by accusing him of issuing a false communique after the battle of Jutland. Another who found that justice is blind to social position was Mrs. Kate Merrick, London's night club queen. Mrs. Merrick spent six months in cheerless Wormwood Scrubs prison for a violation of the English liquor law. The fact that Mrs. Merrick is the mother-in-law of two of England's bluest-blooded peers, had no more weight in the scales of justice than if her sons-in-law were a couple of clam-diggers. Thus it may be seen that though our British cousins may be slow in some things, they are fast enough in enforcing respect for the law.

A variety of cereals, so that the same one is never served more than once a week may mitigate this distaste. In addition it is enough to change flavors. Oatmeal, rice, hominy, farina, cracked wheat should have ample cooking, and if a double boiler is used an hour may not be too much. About fifteen minutes before removing from the fire add some flavor. A cup of milk added to the cooked cereal, before serving, will improve the flavor. Also a lump of butter. The addition of honey or brown sugar for sweetening, if cooked a few moments with the cereal, will remove the flat flavor that even adults don't like.

Incidentally the use of brown sugar regularly may be a real mother's helper. Children usually like it and a spoonful or so sprinkled on the cereal at the table will impart a candy-like flavor that may make the dish almost popular. Eating the cereal for the sake of the brown sugar is a fairly common custom in many families.

Last, but not least—cream is the proper accompaniment for cereal—not milk. A few slices of raw bananas, some preserved or stewed figs or dates, a few slices of canned or stewed apricots are also good allies in the hot-cereal campaign. Keeping a small pitcher of maple syrup or honey near the cereal bowl will also help.

East State st. at Woodland ave. Rev. George D. Keister, pastor. Twenty-fourth Sunday after Trinity.

Sunday school 9:45 (Acts 21-27). H. E. Smith, supt. St. Paul was a witness for Christ. He never lacked courage and fidelity in proclaiming this message to salvation to a sinning world. There were obstacles and hindrances that fiercely and persistently tried to halt his work. He would not be stopped. Suffering, deprivation, hatred of his own fellowmen and the threat of death did not stop his plans to preach Christ. He had a purpose in life. It was God-given. It was the motive of his plans and thoughts. What man for Christ and the Kingdom, he was. We need such spirits today, that will allow nothing to defeat their plans and ideals for God. The word, discouragement and quit, should not be found in the vocabulary of a consecrated Christian.

Morning worship 11, sermon, "Exclusive Christianity." Snobs are a race of self-conscious mortals that are controlled by a false superiority-complex. They think that they are not made of the common clay of the masses. Their exclusiveness is only a thin shell that some day will be crushed to pieces. The principles of Christ are interested in the Brotherhood of man. Thereby hangs the great motive for the Missionary Jesus is all inclusive. Yet there is a program. The "come" of an exclusive feature to the requirements of entrance to the Kingdom. "Not every one that saith Lord, shall enter into the Kingdom of Heaven." "Straight is the gate and narrow is the way, that leadeth unto life."

Luther league 6:30. The Sunday evening devotional topic is, "What is the Purpose of Life?"

SALEM VARSITY GRIDDERS REST; RESERVES OUTCLASS LISBON, 20-0

County Rivals Put Up Stiff Battle Against Quakers in Slow Tilt

Lisbon High's gallant gridiron gladiators, fighting gamely in the face of heavy odds, gave a combination of Salem varsity and reserve talent a fierce battle Friday night at Reilly athletic stadium, the Quakers emerging victorious, 20-0, in the eighteenth annual football duel between the two ancient rivals.

Outweighed better than 10 pounds to a player, the county seat squad held the Quakers scoreless in the first quarter and gave the highly rated Salem eleven a hard fight all the way, even going so far as to threaten to tally a touchdown on one occasion. Salem's superiority was never to be doubted but the invaders, battling valiantly, refused to concede defeat at any moment of the 48 minutes of action.

Penalties Delay Game

Frequent penalties delayed the contest, as the Salem reserves—only four varsity players, were used in the fray by Coach Floyd W. Stone—appeared over-anxious and were penalized for offside and backfield motion with a monotonous frequency. It was just another football game, perhaps not that, from a Salem standpoint, while Lisbon's fandom found much to post bills about in the fine performance of their representatives in the fracas.

Stone's pickups started the action with Ed Beck kicking off to the visitors who were forced to play without their main star, Blackburn, absent because of injuries. Nickelson received the kick and ran it back 15 yards to the 26 from where, after two line bucks failed, he punted to Jack's Carpenter, who ran 18 yards to the Lisbon 48. There was nothing outstanding at all, during the period—Salem lost almost as much ground as it gained on fumbles and bad passes from center and the quarter ended as Ed Beck circled right end for 12 yards, but the play was nulled as a Quaker lineman was off-side.

Lisbon Tries Passes

It was apparent that an aerial attack was to be Lisbon's main threat as the visitors tried four passes, completing one for their first down of the quarter. The Quakers, however, also were held to one, that coming on a 10-yd. dash by Carpenter.

The second quarter started with Salem in possession of the ball on Lisbon's 42 from where Carpenter advanced six yards on an off-lackle buck. Russell starting his first game at fullback, lost a couple, and Beck kicked out of bounds on Lisbon's nine. Nickelson returned the kick, the ball rolling out of bounds on his own 34.

Beck's plunge was good for a couple of yards and Carpenter smashed through for three more. The Quaker captain tried a play through guard but was held to a gain of a yard and the team was forced to take to the air if they ever wished to score this half.

Beck tossed a long, 30-yd. aerial into Norman Early's arms, the rangey tackle making a neat catch for the touchdown. Beck's attempted kick for the point was low.

Loss Scoring Chance

Salem had another chance to score during the quarter after two nice short runs by a substitute back, Mike Fromm, who showed plenty of promise on both offense and defense, but the opportunity was nulled when a Quaker ball-carrier fumbled on the five-yard line. A series of runs by Ed Beck and Carpenter later on also went for naught as the period ended with Salem holding the ball on the visitors' three-yard marker.

A brilliant 15-yd. run by Williams, tiny Lisbon quarterback, gave the invaders their only first down in the third quarter, a period which was marked by fine play of Howard, a flashy defensive halfback hailing from Lisbon, and the visitors' star end, Cannon. A 15-yd. run by Beck, another run of 12 yards by Carpenter and general fine, hard-fighting performances of the Lisbon line, especially Reeves, an under-weight center who refused to take anything from any of the Salem giants, were features of the period.

Quakers Threaten Again

This period was again marked by frequent off-side Salem plays which nulled considerable gains by the Quakers. A blocked punt gave Salem the ball on Lisbon's 25 and on the first play Ed Beck passed to his twin brother Erwin for a 15-yd. gain but the play was called back. Nickelson punted and Salem, for the first time, showed some offensive power.

Beck crashed through for a 15-yd. run and Carpenter followed with gains of five and four yards. Taking the ball on Lisbon's 22, Carpenter dashed through the entire opposing team for a score, but again Salem was termed off-side and the ball brought back. Beck made four right back and Jack added five. Beck rammed through guard for 11 to take the pigskin to the five yard mark as the period finished.

Carpenter gained a yard but again Salem was penalized. On the next play Beck tossed a pass to Raymond which was incomplete. Carpenter heaved a beautiful aerial into Beck's outstretched arms for Salem's second touchdown. He then cracked a big whole off guard for the extra point.

Dan Alexander Stars

Daniel Alexander, stout-hearted Salem junior, was inserted into the fray a few minutes after Beck's kick-off to Lisbon, and took the main role in an offensive drive that was about the best displayed during the game. Taking the ball on Lisbon's 44, Alexander crashed Lisbon's line in real battering-ram style and connected for three first downs almost single-handed.

He's Colgate's "Iron Man"

Meet the "Iron man" of the Colgate eleven. Paul Marsland, star center of the Maroon team, made the varsity squad in 1929. He played through until the third game of this season without a minute of time out. In the game with N. Y. U., Marsland's record was marred when he was knocked out in a scrimmage. His injuries forced a week's layoff, but now he's back in the game going stronger than ever. Paul is 21 years old and lives in New Rochelle, N. Y.

Three Touchdowns Taken from Salem Through Penalties

One of the freakiest football games played in Salem in years was displayed to fandom of the Quaker City and Lisbon at Reilly athletic stadium Friday night.

The Quakers outclassed Lisbon, according to statistics, in every department of play, out-gained them almost three to one, but still, after gaining 356 yards, were able to score only three touchdowns.

Salem lost three touchdowns because of penalties. Daniel Alexander, flashy reserve full-back, being given the doubtful distinction of scoring two without being accredited any.

The game was played in 3 hours and 10 minutes, ending at 10:10.

STRATTON MEETS MICHIGAN RIVAL IN MAIN BATTLE

George Ligoski of Battle Creek Will Oppose Leetonia Star

SCHEDULE CONTEST OVER 2-HOUR LIMIT

Billie Love, Louisville, to Grapple Huffer In Semi-Final Match

The first of a series of wrestling shows planned at the Memorial building auditorium during the fall and winter will be presented here next Tuesday night, showing Walter ("Buck") Stratton of Leetonia, in a head-lined grapple argument with George Ligoski of Battle Creek, Mich.

Large Crowd Expected

A large audience of "rascals" fans is expected to witness the show, displaying to spectators of the district the modern style of catch-as-catch-can wrestling that has been greeted with such nation-wide popularity within a past year. It will be the first wrestling show held in Salem in a decade.

Stratton and Ligoski are scheduled to clash over a two-hour limit for best two out of three falls. It will be their first clash.

Defeats Farmer Nick

Stratton first gained popularity with wrestling fans in victories over Farmer Nick, Detroit, Mich., then added to his prestige by battling Bobby Chick of Houston, Tex., to a draw in two meetings. Both bouts were held in Youngstown where the Leetonia strong-boy won a long string of ring decisions.

Another feature bout is listed in the semi-final attraction where Billie Love of Louisville, Ky., opposes Freddie Huffer of Huntington, W. Va. They will mix it for best two out of three falls, one hour limit.

Kesselmirre To Announce

The evening's entertainment will be opened with a 10-minute curtain-raiser.

James Kesselmirre will appear as announcer at the bouts while efforts are being made to employ a local referee to officiate the arguments. The first match is scheduled at 8:15.

Alliance Coach

George Wilcoxen's Alliance Aviators battle a strong Barborton High team at Barborton today in a contest that will go far in settling or unsettling the Northeastern Ohio Big Ten titular race.

Barborton at present has won two straight league victories and a triumph over Alliance will give the team an equal share on titular honors with Salem and Wooster, should both the latter finish their schedules without a defeat.

Wilcoxen's team is favored to trim Barborton today, the Aviators being ranked among the best teams in the district. Alliance plays Salem High Thanksgiving day.

TULANE GIVEN EDGE IN IMPORTANT DUEL WITH GEORGIA TEAM

Undeclared College Grid Squads Clash In Two Southern Games

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Nov. 14—The nation's football capital shifted into the south today with Athens, Ga., the focal point. There two of the southern conference's three undefeated eleven, Georgia and Tulane, squared off in a crucial battle affecting the national and conference hopes of both.

Tulane Slight Favorite

Tulane ruled a slight favorite largely because Georgia, in barely losing out New York university, 7-6, last week, seemed to be feeling the strain of the gruelling schedule the Bulldogs already have played.

The south offered one more important fray—the clash of Tennessee's undefeated Volunteers and Vanderbilt which has come along fast since absorbing defeats by Tulane and Georgia earlier in the season.

Elsewhere on the football front sectional contests, involving traditional rivals, overshadowed such inter-sectional frays as those involving Notre Dame and Navy at Baltimore; Georgia Tech and Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; Washington & Lee and Princeton at Princeton; and Villanova and Detroit at Detroit.

Cornell Plays Dartmouth

In the east, there were five prime games with a probable attendance of close to 250,000 for these contests alone. Unbeaten teams figure in four of these duels as Cornell matches strength and passes against Dartmouth; Harvard tackles Holy Cross; Fordham ran up against New York university and Syracuse met a traditional foe in Colgate. The other big eastern classic pitted Army against Pitt at Pittsburgh.

In the Big Ten, four conference games were headed by a tussle between Ohio State and Wisconsin; Northwestern, with an overwhelming favorite over Indiana and Purdue seemed to have the edge in Iowa. Chicago and Illinois were paired off in the other clash. Michigan took on a formidable state rival in Michigan state.

Iowa State Plays Drake

The Big Six schedule found two contenders, Nebraska and Kansas state, drawn as rivals in the feature clash. Oklahoma and Missouri tangled in another conference struggle while Iowa state, co-leader with Nebraska, went outside the conference for its traditional game with Drake. Kansas played Washington university.

Southern Methodist seemed assured of another southwest conference victory against Baylor but Texas Christian also unbeaten in the conference expected a handfull in the meeting with Texas. Rice played Texas A. and M.

Wheat King

Arthur William Cutten (above), grain operator, is believed to have played a prominent part in the raging bull market that swept wheat steadily up on the Chicago Board of Trade during the last few weeks. In 1927, when Cutten held 15,000,000 bushels of wheat, he profited to the extent of $12,000,000. Known as a "man of mystery," Cutten is the leading grain operator on the Chicago board.

PRACTICAL SCHOOL DRESS
PATTERN 2031

Knowing youngsters go in for tailored frocks. This season they are using the same sheer woollens that are so popular with grownups. Here is a simple model relying on its stitched pleats, and its contrasting collar and cuffs for youthful smartness. A leather belt adds a nice touch, too. When selecting your material for this little dress, look at the stunning jerseys and light weight tweeds in shades of green or brown. Tan or white pique or linen makes a chic trim.

Pattern 2031 is obtainable only in sizes 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 6 requires 1 5/8 yards of 54 inch fabric, 3-8 of a yard trimming. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

Send for the Winter Catalog. It features the newest in afternoon, sports and house dresses, lingerie, pajamas and kiddies' clothes. Also delightful gift suggestions in accessory and transfer patterns.

12 Million In U. S. Await Yule Checks

Within the next few weeks approximately $600,000,000 will be released to 12,000,000 American Christmas club depositors for December holiday shopping. In Salem a fund of $61,500 will be released in Yule club checks on Wednesday, Dec. 2.

The distribution, about 6 percent less than last year's record-breaking total, will be accompanied by cooperation of merchants, newspapers and banks in more than 4,000 communities to "inspire wise and useful spending."

The 8,000 banking institutions and organizations will disburse approximately $50 on the average to each depositor. New York state leads all others with $123,000,000 of which almost $80,000,000 will be distributed in metropolitan area.

With Salem's club savings averaging better than $5 per capita, this city ranks high among the list of Ohio municipalities sponsoring the Christmas club idea, banking officials here said.

The state of Ohio ranks third in total savings with $43,400,000 to be distributed. Pennsylvania is second with $50,000,000.

Angelo sends the Sour Notes to the Junk Heap...

It may seem heartless but when Angelo Vitale starts his rehearsals, the sour notes are gently but firmly asked to leave the room... We think that's the procedure... Anyhow, they're all absent when the Metropolitan Orchestra goes on the air with the Good Roads Program each Saturday evening at 8:00 O'CLOCK... WTAM, Cleveland, is the station.

THEATER Attractions

Filmed and recorded off the rugged, ice-bound coast of Labrador, the first talking picture ever taken in the Arctic regions, "The Viking," a picture which cost the lives of 26 persons, will be the feature at the Grand theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Sealing Vessel Explodes

A dramatic story of the rivalry of two Newfoundland sealers for the love of a woman they both loved is told in "The Viking," a vehicle given nationwide publicity when the sealing vessel for which the show is named was destroyed in an explosion near Horse Island, off the coast of Newfoundland.

The picture ranks among the best scheduled to appear here during the coming week.

Charles Starrett, former Broadway star, makes his talkie debut in the picture, and is supported by Louise Huntington, Arthur Vinton and Gapt. Bob Bartlett, famous captain of the Schooner Morrissy during Admiral Peary's trip to the North pole.

Sir Wilfred Grenfell, world famous Labrador explorer, is heard in a talking prologue.

Graves, Holt Starred

Scheduled as the State's attraction for three days, starting Sunday, is another drama showing Ralph Graves and Jack Holt in leading roles. This pair, who have been aviators, zeppelin masters, deep-sea divers and everything else in talkies, now appear as policeman and reporter in "A Dangerous Affair."

Sally Blane, William V. Mong and Susan Fleming head the supporting cast. It's probably the best picture starring the Graves-Holt duo ever made.

Novello In State Feature

Ivor Novello, one of the greatest figures in modern-day play-acting on Broadway, is starred in "Once A Lady" at the State Wednesday and Thursday. Geoffrey Kerr, Jill Esmond and Ruth Chatterton head a fine supporting cast.

What is listed as the week's leading attraction brings Roland Young, William Farnum, Conrad Nagel, Leslie Fenton, Evelyn Brent, Charles Bickford, Wallace McDonald and Gwen Lee together in the cast that makes "Pagan Lady," scheduled at the Grand Wednesday and Thursday.

Richard Cromwell, Sally Blane and Noah Beery are starred in "Shanghai Love" at the Grand Friday and Saturday. The State features "Are These Our Children?" starring Eric Linden and Beryl Mercer on the same two days.

"Are These Our Children?" is now showing in the nation's leading playhouses and is declared to bring before the screen-going public a graphic picture of the modern generation.

Today's Features

Hoot Gibson in "The Hard Hombre," at the Grand and "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," at the State, are tonight's features.
